WHAT SHALL WE WEAR?

AUTUMN FASHIONS THAT FIND FAVOR AT HOME AND ABROAD.

A New and Attractive Gown Which Is Suitable for Either Reception, Evening or Dinner Dress and Shows a Good Figure to Especial Advantage.

Evening dresses are most of them devoid of drapery. A charming gown, appropriate either for dinner, reception or evening wear, is illustrated in our cut. This gown, which shows to advantage a good figure, depends greatly upon its absolutely perfect fit for success. The model here shown is in cream green net spotted with mauve chenille wafers. It is edged around the skirt and along the sleeves with rows of silver and mauve ribbon, two bands of which encircle the semi-long sleeves, and are finished off with a bow.

The stomacher, cuffs and bands that encircle this gown are in brilliant cut bead.

A GRACEFUL EVENING DRESS. work, combining numerous tints of green, heliotrope and silver. The back is arranged with a few plaits at the waist, and at the opening it describes a point smaller than that at the front. This style of dress would be exceedingly effective in black Russian net with a garniture of cut jet passementerie.

Millinery Memoranda.
"I gather that birds will be the popular trimming for bonnets again this winter," says Miss Mantelini in The Fall Mail Budget. "The milliners are piling them on with their old readiness."
Hats are worn in any direction now, according to the wearer's fancy. Some women will wear their hats perched right at the back, others will go to the opposite extreme and wear them low on the face, like a burglar's cap. Another style is to wear the hat slightly tilted back.

A rather smart kind of hat for traveling, in blue felt, has a moderate brim slightly curved all round, and a low crown bound by a velvet band and sharpened with a bow of velvet on one side and a paste buckle.

Quills and wings will be popular trimmings this autumn.
The torador hat promises to be fashionable again. It is trimmed in various ways. One of the most attractive trimmings for this particular hat is a couple of ropes of velvet and a bird or two. The velvet is twisted round the base, and top edge of the crown, the birds finding a resting place at the side.

Bonnets are assuming sensible proportions again. A bonnet now is really a head cover, and worthy the name. Those nonsensical things consisting simply of a butterfly, a spray of leaves, or half a dozen leaves, that did duty as bonnets the early part of the year, have vanished.

Fashions of the Future.
As an indication of fashions to come it may be told that thicker striped woolsens, with softened shaded effects, are being prepared for later autumn. One in green and black and another a combination of many colors are most original. All kinds of Irish lace are coming into favor, and a very pretty bridal dress of white satin was recently trimmed in most graceful style with Limerick. In this trousseau was a white spotted tea gown, the collar bordered with gold, the loose sleeves plaited at the shoulder. The short style of sleeve, a double puff and perpendicular material, is being resuscitated.

Street Dresses for Autumn.
Suits for the autumn are plainly and waists are mostly made with a simple, straight, or slightly flared skirt. The skirt is similar to those seen on a child's coat. These are worn over a skirt of white or of material like the skirt suits the taste of the wearer. The skirt is still made high and full on the hips and are open on the inside of the skirted together.

A New Evening Bodice.
A new idea for evening wear has been developed in a gown the bodice of which is high on one side and low on the other. The high side of this unique bodice is finished with a collar which reaches half round the throat. The effect is singular and will hardly prove popular.

Lady's Waistcoat.
The illustration here given represents a style of waistcoat, among women of which the material of which it is made is of white pique, flannel, stock, etc., to or correct with the skirt.

The waistcoat created here is intended only for the front, with its angle gone on each side, the back being made in the lining. The V-shaped opening at the neck shows a simulated undergarment in printed or embroidered, with the military collar to match, and a curved basque projecting from under the light colored waistcoat, which is fastened with mother of pearl or gilt buttons.
Pointed bands, corselets, fancy jackets with waistcoats and blouse bodices are all fashionable styles likely to remain in vogue throughout the winter. The new corselets of passementerie or velvet are made in Swiss belt fashion, with slight points below the waist and much longer and sharper points rising on the chest in front, and between the shoulders at the back.

When baby was sick, we gave her Castoria. When she was a child, she cried for Castoria. When she became a woman, she clung to Castoria. When she had children, she gave them Castoria.

ALL AROUND THE HOUSE.
Good Ideas About Choosing Wall Papers. Favorite Colors and New Designs.
Women frequently choose the wall paper for their sitting rooms to go with their complexion, it is said. A good idea. Some papers, yellowish greens for example, throw sickly hues over a room. These papers are of course destructive to the complexion. Women who are in the habit of consulting their appearance in the glass know very well that they look much nicer in some rooms than in others. A celebrated painter who goes in for wall decoration has told that lady visitors were often puzzled to know why they always looked their best in his drawing room. They never thought of tracing the improvement to the walls.
A successful room is in pink of soft, pale tint. Blue is a more popular color and also more trying. Pale greens are expected to be in demand shortly. Some very pretty papers are self-colored. These are more convenient than the highly colored papers, for you can hang anything against a self-colored ground. The designs of the new papers are many of them conventional.
For bedrooms chintz effects take best. The designs of some of these are naturalistic. Unique designs for children's rooms are "Alice in Wonderland," "Dick Whittington" and "The House That Jack Built," with the fable in each case complete.
One of the newest papers for a staircase or vestibule is taken from an old oriental design. It has a cream colored ground covered with a bold pattern of birds and flowers. The peacock is the most conspicuous figure in the design. I saw some fine tapestry papers for the same purpose that were not gloomy. Red is still the favorite color for dining room walls. It is warm certainly, but not always restful. Papers with metal tints are not being used so freely now. They have a reputation for tarnishing. In decorating the color scheme is thought out beforehand, so that instead of getting violent contrasts, the decoration of one room only brightens the effect of another.

Hobbies and Health.
Most men have a hobby; all men should. It clears up the brain in a wonderful way, taking the three attention to other channels, rubbing off the cobwebs and infusing a fresh interest into life. At 70 years of age Allison, reviewing his days, and feeling as strong as at 25, attributed his happy condition to a variety of occupation. "Either the law or the literature," he said, "would, I am persuaded, have ruined my health or terminated my life; but the two together saved both." Microscope or telescope, botany or literature—the hobby world is a wide one, and offers all kinds of entertainment to the man with time and intelligence.

Shall the Baby Not Be Rocked?
Aside from the sentiment it is not wise to rock a baby. It is also a woman's notion that the eternal swaying facilitates sleep. The lullaby is quite as effective and considerably sweeter rendered in a stationary chair. According to The World, in the baby hospitals, homes and asylums of New York, where thousands of little ones are carefully and tenderly reared, rocking chairs and swinging cribs are abolished on the ground of nervous disorders. The death rate is lower than among private nurseries, and the general health and habits of the babies considerably better.

Toilet Hints.
One ounce each of spermaceti, camphor and almond oil, and half a cake of white wax, melted together and turned into molds, make a good camphor ice.
Do not use toilet waxes containing much alcohol. Alcohol is too drying for most skins.
Lime water is a simple anti-acid and slightly tonic. A small quantity put into the tooth mug with the water for cleaning the teeth will harden the gums and prevent decay.

Cayenne pepper, bay rum, castor oil and alcohol are said to make a preparation good for preventing the hair from falling out.

Physiology and Hygiene.
The Proper Exposure, Air Space, Temperature, Etc., of a Model Sick Room.
Professor Tyson, of the University of Pennsylvania, in a lecture delivered recently before the nurses of the university hospital, said that no room should be occupied by a sick person which does not have an area of at least 1,700 cubic feet. It should have a southern exposure, and even in summer should receive as much sunlight as possible. Excepting in certain diseases, about which the physicians should give directions, there should be plenty of sunlight admitted to the room all day.

The furniture and hangings of the room should be of such a nature that they could be easily cleaned and washed, and they should be kept in a perfectly clean condition. The constant circulation of air in the room should be a prime requirement, but this should be secured without draught upon the patient. A lighted lamp placed in the fireplace would give a flow of air which would be beneficial in cases where no heat was desired. The general temperature of the room should be from 68 to 70 degs., and should be constant.

Food Does Not Affect the Nerves.
Dr. G. W. Barr, writing to The Therapeutic Gazette, claims that tea kept too cold for a short time has none of the physiological action of opium. He has known a man of nervous temperament who is kept awake all night by a single cup of tea to drink a half gallon of tea during the evening, and sleep soundly at his usual time of retiring. Others made very nervous by hot tea have been able to drink large quantities of cold tea with no appreciable effect. If the tea grounds are allowed to remain in the liquid the tea is usually kept long enough before drinking to dissolve more tannin than is usual in hot tea, hence the tea should be strained as soon as it is brewed.

The Strong Points of Vaccination.
The London Lancet sums up the latest aspects of the vaccination controversy as follows: "The one thing we do know is that vaccine lymph, whatever its origin, has been proved to grant to people coming into the closest contact with smallpox patients an almost immediate immunity from the disease, and that its inoculation into the arms of infants has succeeded in doing away with smallpox among children, precisely according to the extent to which the prophylactic has been used. As yet these pieces of overwhelming proof in favor of vaccination have not been dealt with by the anti-vaccinationists. Indeed, the points have been almost studiously avoided."

WHAT SHALL WE WEAR?

LONDON, PARIS AND NEW YORK FASHIONS.

Fris and Flounces Abound on Many of the Newest Gowns—How Some of the Street Dresses Are Fashioned—A French Toilet for Informal Reception.

On many of the new dresses everything in way of trimming on the skirts runs to frills or flounces. The novelty in one dress seen was the trimming, which consisted of several rows of velvet put on in a Vandyke pattern around the bottom of the skirt and carried right up the back from hem to waist.

Gold and silver passementerie are still numbered with fashionable dress garnitures. A black gauze gown with gold spots, for evening wear, is edged with a couple of rows of gold passementerie and a lace flounce.

There is a revolution against the very close fitting, tight skirts, and while skirts and pads are not visible, dresses are made full at the back, with a natural and graceful flow. Some of the newest street dresses are quite plain in front and at the sides, with folds behind, or have fan folds in front, plain sides and folds behind.

In the cut is illustrated a charming French toilette in cashmere and silk, suitable for carriage or informal reception wear. The polonaise in cashmere is draped in front and slashed at the back. It is bordered with passementerie. The coquille at the side apparently emerges from the draped folds on the left hip. The semi-train skirt is of silk.

Fashionable Colors.
Rich dahlia tints and reddish heliotropes are shown in French color cards in six shades, ranging up to the pale tint of Persian lilacs. The best violet shades are in every rich. Clear dark browns are in every shade of coffee brown. More yellowish browns are tabac and the light bison, castor and beige shades. The grays are metallic tints—pale silver gray and steel, clear blue and dark platinum gray. Bluet blue and pale turquoise are excellent colors for millinery; royal blue, the bleu de France and dark marine are winter colors, and the gray blues are almost steel color. A pale china blue is named after Pailley, and this, with turquoise, will be much used to lighten black and the dark brown shades. Bright Spanish yellow is also much combined with black. The new greens are those with blue tints.

Latest Styles in Ribbons.
Plain double faced satin ribbons are the fashionable trimming for autumn bonnets, and with velvet ribbons will be used throughout the winter. Uncut velvet ribbons with satin stripes, and large velvet spots on satin stripes, are very stylish. Narrow velvet ribbons will remain in favor for strings, and two inch widths for trimmings. Shot glass velvet ribbons are much used in Paris. High stiff loops, pointed ends, long looped bows, and tresses of soft folds of plush velvet are on the new hats. Metal ribbons, especially gold and silver, are used alone or in combination with velvet or satin ribbons.

Little Girls' Dresses.
Little girls dresses are many of them provided with hats or bonnets to match this season. The variety is decidedly refreshing. Smoking, of which there has been a smiff, seems to be on the wane. In the cut is shown a charming little frock in silk and wool.

The deep Vandykes, which form a sort of yoke over the bodice, are in silk, as are the platings that finish the neck and sleeves. The neck is also of silk. The remainder of the frock is of any soft woolen fabric that may be selected.

Fashion Echoes.
The girl dupe is now haunting the fashionable tailor, who is fashioning all sorts of mannish top coats, jackets, waistcoats and habit skirts.

There's a vast difference between the woman who puts things on and she who is dressed. A few women have the knack of always appearing well dressed.

A well dressed woman always takes care to be well shod and well gloved if her dress and bonnet are not in the very latest fashion.

A soft cashmere with a brocade of irregular spots is new, but somewhat stiff. The Amazon cloth appears with a new face, for besides the plum colors and the speckled surfaces they are checked.

A Useful Bag.
A smart but serviceable bag in which to put stockings while they are waiting to undergo repairs is very inexpensively made in crash. Good Housekeeping illustrates and describes one as follows: Take a yard and a quarter of gray Russian crash, the bag together with the fringed ends at one end making a flange for the bottom of the bag.

While the top of the shorter piece is hemmed with a narrow hem, and the extra nine inches of the longer piece is turned over like a flap on the front of the bag.

With a small tescup, or any bag round thing of equal size, draw a circle in the middle of the lower half of the bag which is not covered with the turned over portion. Draw three smaller circles on the unfripped part of the flap at equal distances apart. With black and yellow saphyr or crewel fill in these circles by shading or some filling in stitch. Brier stitch the seams with yellow saphyr, and beneath the flap fasten a slender strip of wood to hold the bag in shape. Make the handles of this bag of two strips of crash four inches wide and half a yard in length.

Seam each strip together and turn it inside out, so the seam will be on the inside. Put a row of brier stitching down the center of each strip, and fasten one handle to the bag at each end, one end of the strip being fastened to the back and the other to the front. A needle book and a small pocket for holding darning cotton can also be fastened under the flap. A bag of this description is also very nice for holding soiled handkerchiefs or waste paper, or any of the other little odds and ends for which it is desirable to have a place of their own.

The mathematical difficulties attending the introduction of the storage battery system are said to have been entirely overcome, and the sole question to be considered is that of its economy in comparison with other systems of traction.
